Greek Mythology will always be culturally relevant in our world. There is a great deal of Greek mythology symbolism of Greek gods in today's society. Greek mythology will remain compatible to the ideas of society. Many aspects of our culture involve and began from Greek myths. The solar system for the most part also named after the Greek gods, "with the exception of Earth, all of the planets in our solar system have names from or Roman mythology"(Starchild NASA1). There is also much symbolism of Greek gods and mythology in today's society. Greek mythology is greatly reflected in advertising. Several examples are Nike, the goddess of victory, and the very popular sports company, Nike. Another popular advertisement is for the FTD flower delivery company. Their logo includes Hermes or Mercury, the messenger of the gods with winged feet. Apollo, the god of music, has a famous music hall in New York named after him, the Apollo Theater. There is also a magazine of the arts called Daedalus.

Greek mythology is relatable to humans. Many of the heroes in Greek mythology are on a quest for truth. In today's society, humans are still looking for truthful answers to their many questions. Myths explain things the people are believed to not understand. Creation stories in Greek mythology tell of how everything came to be. In their opinion, many Creation stories include a flood story, which leads Christians to have greater faith that it occurred. It is also important to study Greek mythology because it is part of history. There can be a lot to be learned about the Greek culture. Greek mythology will always be relevant and relatable to the people in this world.
